

CDI Deck Hardware & Furling Line

Installation Instructions

1. Attach the furling line to the furler drum per the furler installation instructions.
2. Decide which side to run the furling line. If the sail already has UV protection, the furling line should be on the same side as the UV protection.
3. Determine the location for the first fairlead (or block for FF7/FF9 kits). When properly located, the furling line should exit the large hole in the cup at a 90 degree angle to the forestay (furling line wound to middle of spool) in the center of the hole in the cup. If necessary, turn the cup 45 degrees to avoid interference with lockers or equipment on the bow (see your furler installation instructions).
4. Mount the first fairlead. Use bedding compound if drilling into the deck. With FF7 kits, attach the first block to the eye strap, which should be in line with the furling line.
5. Mount the stanchion mount fairleads at the base of two stanchions as appropriate. Additional fairleads are available if necessary.
6. For FF6, FF7, or FF9 kits, mount the stanchion bail on a stanchion near the aft end of the cockpit and attach the block to the bail.
7. Attach the stanchion mount cleat at a convenient stanchion base or remove the cleat and mount in a convenient place in or near the cockpit. The aft end of the cockpit is frequently chosen since it is out of the way.
8. Thread the furling line through the fairleads/blocks. Tie a Figure 8 knot to prevent the line from escaping. Shorten the furling line if desired, but leave enough line to furl your largest sail tightly and still have a couple of turns left on the drum.
